A SPOTTER IN TOWN.

He is Making the Life of Street Car Conductors Very Uncomfortable.

SEVERAL PUNCHERS LAID OFF.

The Spotter Has Been Spotted by Some of the Street Car Men.

The lives of the conductors of the St. Joseph & Benton Harbor street railway company have been made a burden by the recent swooping down of a spotter who has not the ability to count or is dishonest with the men. Consequently many of the old conductors are now laid off pending the investigation of charges.

The spotter is a stranger here and also a stranger to most approved rules for working the intricate problems in addition.

The other night one of the conductors had 117 punches on his register. The spotter informed Will Hull, the secretary of the street car company, that 130 people were on the car. Hull was riding on the same car and investigated. He found the record of the conductor correct.

It is on charges such as these that the conductors now have to answer. Had Hull not been on the car the night in question another conductor would now be out of a job.

Last night another conductor spotted the spotter. The man sent to play the sneak act was so faithful in watching matters that he was easily recognized. There was a happy gleam in his eye as he thought he had a sure case with a small lot of passengers.

There were 18 people on the car, the register showed but 17 fares. The conductor spoke to the spotter and remarked:

"Say, friend, you are not quite sure after all. That man on the front seat works for the company. There are only 17 passengers."

IT WAS CRUEL.

Superintendent Mason Entertains a Big Crowd.

A capital but rather cruel joke was sprung on Superintendent Mason at last evening's performance in the Academy of Music by the Baker Stock company.

Two comedians, Welch and Wesner, who appear prominently in the vaudeville feature of the show, last night played the parts of a tramp and an Irishman and did some clever acrobatic work. Toward the conclusion of this act it was announced that an exhibition of high-kicking by one of the most renowned athletes in the world would be given.

Henry Mason, the tallest man in the house, was called to the stage to hold a hat aloft for the celebrated athlete to kick. Henry mounted a chair and extended his arm lifting the hat at least 15 feet from the floor. With an audience of 600 people gazing at him Henry stood waiting for the high-kicker to appear. While he waited the Irishman and the tramp darted behind the scenes and from there made their way into the audience and took a seat in the orchestra pit where they could get an uninterrupted view of Henry.

Henry shifted his tired body from one leg to another as he waited. He looked longingly toward the stage entrances and then toward the audience which returned the gaze coldly. Henry stood on the chair fully three minutes and then the comedians in the orchestra pit started an applause. Henry saw the joke. A sickly smile overspread his features as he dismounted the chair and crawled off the stage.

The crowd shouted with the power of a volcanic eruption. People stamped their feet and screamed at the top of their voices. Henry disappeared behind the scenes his features betraying a variety of emotions. He was not seen again last night.

THE WEATHER.

Cooler tonight with showers in southeast portion. Saturday partly cloudy with showers in southwest portion.

AMONG THE CRIMINALS.

Frank Carr confessed before Justice Baldrey this morning that he was drunk and the justice sentenced him to 10 days in the county jail.

Frank Reese, arrested on complaint of having stolen a bicycle, was discharged before Justice Baldrey this morning. Reese, when arrested was in possession of Editor Mohler's wheel, which he today explained was found by him at the E. A. Graham dock. Mr. Mohler was not inclined to prosecute the boy and the case was dismissed.

A BOGUS PHISCATER.

Man in Niles Represented Himself to be Frank Phiscater, the Baroda Gold King.

ONLY A FAKE PHISCATER.

It is Thought Phiscater Will Visit Montana Before Coming to Michigan.

In a letter from Chester A. Aldrich, the well-known Niles correspondent, to THE EVENING NEWS today is the following:

"I saw Phiscater in Niles Wednesday and talked with him. If I am not mistaken he is now in St. Joseph visiting his brother-in-law, William Hone."

THE NEWS called up Mr. Hone by telephone and learned that Phiscater had not reached St. Joseph, and Mr. Hone pronounced the whole story a fake. He said that Phiscater would visit his wife in Montana before coming to St. Joseph.

It is possible that the Niles correspondent was taken in by some impostor. The steamer Portland on which Phiscater was a passenger did not reach Seattle until Sunday and it is a physical impossibility that the man could have reached Niles Wednesday morning.

Mr. Aldrich is a good newspaper man and it takes a good man to "take him in."

The bogus Phiscater is as shrewd as the original. He should make tracks for Alaska at once as a great fortune awaits him there sure.

Should he freeze the world would lose nothing. He has all the gain and other people not a thing to lose by his going.

A DAUGHTER RENOUNCED.

Because Her Parents Did Not Love Her Husband.

The testimony in the trial of Jacob Hushaw, before Justice Cady, on a complaint to have him furnish sureties to keep the peace, developed the existence of rather unnatural relations between Mr. and Mrs. Hushaw and the family of John Buckman.

The complaining witness in the case is Delmer Laplant, an intelligent looking man, who lives with the Buckman's and is soon to become the husband of a daughter of John Buckman, so the story goes. Mrs. Hushaw is a daughter of John Buckman, and Hushaw claims that the criminal action against him is the result of a plot by the Buckman family and Laplant who have made repeated attempts to induce his wife to leave him, each attempt resulting fruitlessly.

Because Mrs. Hushaw is disposed to remain faithful to her husband the Buckmans are said to be mad and have systematically undertaken to make the life of Jake Hushaw and his wife one of continual misery. The testimony was concluded last night and this morning the counsel entered upon their addresses to the jury. A. L. Hammond, of the firm of Hammond & Hammond retained as counsel by the defendant, brought evidences of birth to the stated features of the court when in his plea to the jury he referred to Laplant as reminding him of "Shakespeare's Willie Weed, who wouldn't chew tobacco; it was a filthy weed."

The attorney considered that Laplant with his broad shoulders, his muscular arms and general athletic build was not a man who would naturally stand in fear of his life by violence from the frail and inoffensive appearing Jake Hushaw.

ON THE AMERICAN SIDE

The Klondyke Deposits of Gold Not All in the Queen's Dominions.

THE FAIRY TALES OF GOLD.

A Detroit Man Says Next February is the Proper Time to Go There.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—There is said to be a fabulously rich placer district northwest of Dawson City, and on the American side. F. G. H. Bowker, who has returned from the Yukon with $40,000, tells of it.

When his party was descending the Yukon on the return from Dawson City the steamship was intercepted by a man who desired to send letters and papers back to civilization. This man was one of a party who had gone down the river from Dawson in the hope of locating rich beds of which Indians in the vicinity had been telling. The members of the party were well known to the Yukoners and full credence is given the story.

Bowker and his associates were told that just across the Alaska boundary, on the American side, the party had found placer fields fabulously rich in gold. They had staked out claims and begun to work them.

"Every one of us has taken out thousands of dollars in dust and nuggets already," said Bowker's informant, "and there seems no limit to the gold in sight. It is more abundant than on the Klondyke and easier to work, the gold being very near the surface of the ground. We are all rich already, but we are going to stay through next winter."

Further information was conveyed that they were the only white men in the new district and they had the field practically to themselves. They advised Bowker and his companions to forsake Klondyke claims on their return from the states and take claims on the new digging.

DETROIT, July 23.—John L. Simpson, of this city, has made several trips to Alaska and knows the country in the vicinity of Juneau and Sitka well and realizes the hardships one would undergo in reaching the Klondyke region if he started from Detroit at this time of the year.

"Starting now the gold fields could not be reached in time for a log hut to be built for the winter, and the only shelter that could be expected would be a tent," said Mr. Simpson. "There would be little hope of securing dogs to carry an outfit and provisions, and at least five or six trips across the divide of 100 miles would be necessary for a man to pack them across on his back. I presume that dogs could not be purchased in the neighborhood of Juneau and Dyea now for less than $50 or $60 a piece, if indeed they could be had at all. They are scarce animals up there now."

"The proper time to start from here would be in February. Even if one managed to reach the Klondyke this winter he could do no prospecting until spring."

White Dome Geyser Yellowstone Park.
"A mile and a half from the Fountain Hotel, and easily reached by bicycle, tourist wagon, or by walking, lies a hidden basin full of nature's caprices. At the entrance, as if on guard, stands the immaculate White Dome. As one approaches, he almost expects to be challenged and asked for a countersign. If such a challenge is given it is in a curious fashion, in the form of a geyser eruption, for the White Dome is a geyser. It is not unlike the Castle Geyser, or the White Pyramid of the Upper Geyser Basin. The geyser is a very white, rather dome-shaped mound, built up from the secretions of its waters, and is the most conspicuous feature of the locality. It is perhaps 25 feet high, with a circumference at the base of 75 or 100 feet. Its eruptions come at intervals of from twenty to forty-five minutes, being somewhat irregular, and the water is thrown to a height of from ten to twenty-five feet."

The Evening News Boys' band will run a special train from this city to the race track and Paw Paw lake tomorrow. The train will leave here at 12:30, arriving in Coloma in time for the races. The fare for the round trip is but 40 cents.

BARODA MEN DETERMINED.

They are Still Hauling Their Fruit to Bridgeman.

BARODA, July 23.—The storm which broke out at the beginning of the strawberry season when the Vandalia railroad took off its fruit train to Chicago has not yet subsided. The farmers are yet hauling their berries overland to the West Michigan road at Bridgeman. Some who were not in the wrangle are patronizing the rail and water route via St. Joseph as of yore.

THE MACCABEES.

A Plan For Rerating of Members Discussed.

PORT HURON, July 23.—A discussion of a plan for rerating the old members occupied most of yesterday's session of the Supreme Tent of Maccabees. Two years ago the assessment rate on all new members was raised 50 per cent. The present plan is to assess the old members the same rate as the new. The opponents of the proposition say that if the assessments are raised many of the old members will withdraw.

The honor of a unanimous re-election was accorded to Supreme Commander D. P. Markey, of Port Huron, Supreme Record Keeper N. S. Boyton of Port Huron, Supreme Finance Keeper Charles D. Thompson of Port Huron, Supreme Medical Examiner R. E. Moss of New York, Supreme Sergeant H. E. Trent of Toronto, Ont., and members of the supreme board of trustees, D. D. Aitken of Flint and John W. Porter of Port Huron.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Charles V. B. Scott is Thrown Into the River.

Charles V. B. Scott, of Lowell, Mass., who is enjoying an outing of a few weeks here, was thrown from his bicycle into the St. Joseph river last evening and escaped drowning by the narrowest margin.

The accident occurred on the E. A. Graham dock, where the dock and south pier are joined. There is a sharp ascent from the dock to the pier and while attempting to climb this on his wheel Mr. Scott lost his mount and toppled over into the river, the wheel following him down to the water 10 feet below. Mr. Scott sank below the surface of the water, but being a good swimmer his head soon emerged.

A young lady accompanying him gave the alarm, and a gentleman near by came to the rescue. Mr. Scott was almost helpless on account of having one foot tangled up in the bicycle. He could not extricate himself from the wheel and had he not succeeded in getting a grip on the side of the dock he would have been borne down by the wheel and drowned.

While he was being pulled out of the water the wheel refused to loose itself and it was as Mr. Scott was rescued. Mr. Scott has had more than his share of misfortunes since coming here. The other night while crossing the lake on one of the Graham boats he was robbed in his state room of $7.

PEAR TREE PEST.

A New Plague for Fruit Growers to Fight.

Professor L. R. Taft, of the horticultural department of the M. A. C., recently received specimens of the pear tree psylla that is doing such damage in Kent and other counties, it being the most dangerous pest to pear trees thus far known in this country.

This pest is about the size of plant lice, and they suck large quantities of the sap from the leaves and tender shoots. This is exuded as honey-dew, often covering the branches so that they drip. A fungus develops in the honey-dew, and drying on the branches, gives them a black, sooty appearance. The mature insects winter in the crevices of the bark and deposit their eggs near the buds at the ends of the shoots. The young insects, or nymphs, as they are called, hatch about the middle of May, and at once begin to suck the sap from the leaves and small fruit. After moulting several times they are ready at the end of about a month to change to the adult form, and soon deposit eggs for another brood. The eggs for the second brood hatch in about ten days, and at this season of the year there will be about one brood per month, the usual number being about four. The adults are provided with wings and are quite active, taking flight at the slightest disturbance of the tree. The leaves drop and finally turn yellow.

Taft recommends that trees affected should be sprayed with kerosene emulsion. The trees should be carefully examined in the spring. The nymphs are about as large as plant lice, nearly as broad as long, and much flattened. They are yellowish-brown in color, with black spots and stripes. The margin of the wing covers and abdomen are fringed with stout bristles, which can be seen with a good hands lens.

Yellowstone Lake.

"There is an individuality about lakes. Perhaps the most striking thing about Yellowstone lake is its high altitude. It is up among the mountains and clouds in Yellowstone park nearly a mile and a half—7,741 feet—above where the sportive summer girl sits on the beach at the Atlantic ocean while the lazy wavelets ripple about her dainty toes. But as high as it is the mountains rise higher still by thousands of feet. In a solemn, owl-like fashion they blink down at the lake, and the lake blinks back at them. These mountains are well defined peaks, and cones, and turrets, and nearly all are named. Some of them are in this way redolent of the old explorers, the men who first braved the perils and difficulties of an unknown, untrodden wilderness. Such are Colter peak and Mount Doane."

The above is taken from "Wonderland '97," a beautiful new Tourist book published by the Northern Pacific railway. It will be mailed to any address upon receipt of six cents in stamps by CHAS. S. FEE, Gen'l Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

THE BRIGHT SIDE.
 There is no happy reason why people should look at the dark side of things as they now exist. THE EVEN-ING NEWS does not believe that the promised prosperity or any considerable part of it has arrived or has even approached within hailing distance.

In spite of this many people are apt to paint matters much worse than they are. Locally it is true that the berry crop has been marketed with very little if any profit to the grower but the yield has been so immense that it has given a wonderful demand for labor in the box factories and for labor in the field. This is a better condition for Benton Harbor than though the crop had been frozen and five hundred cases or so were shipped a day at $2 per crate. The transportation companies, too, that are large users of labor, have had a successful season and they have put many dollars in the channels of trade.

The comfort which comes from looking on the bright side ought to be cold enough and the picture dismal enough without people picturing the imaginary dark side.

Looking on the bright side, talking on the bright side, doing business on the bright side will do what the election of McKinley failed to do—restore confidence.

A FAMILY once lived on the platform of "peace if it is necessary to fight for it." The Kalamazoo Telegraph has started a campaign for prosperity on about the same principle. Here is the declaration of that republican organ:
 "Every Bryanite who walks up and down the streets crying 'hard times' and 'where's your prosperity?' ought to be locked up."

FOR the past week the weather forecast has promised rain for Michigan.
 Nearly every foot of the state, with the exception of Benton Harbor, has been drenched while only storms of dust have reached this place.

How's This?

Our Shoe
...Advertising
 Is based on good shoes. We could sell a poor shoe at a big profit just once, but we'd lose your trade. We'd rather sell a good shoe at a right profit and keep on selling all the time. It doesn't take an unusually wise head to see that we make more that way, although some cute merchants keep on trying the other way. We will make it up by selling shoes to the whole family, and while we may not make as much profit on one pair we'll make it up by selling more pairs.

MY LADY'S SECRET.

My lady always smiled—not much to do, But when the hours and days increase in care, And dreariness and weariness pursue, When youth and love grow dim in backward view,

And life is but to bear and still forbear, Ah, then, her gentle sweetness, undimmed By years of bitterness, shone forth. She smiled.

My lady always smiled, in life and death. Some envied her a life that seemed all smiles, And some envied her a death that seemed all smiles. Self pitying, and God and man reviled, But come, to sorrow's burden reconciled, Were glad the gladness of her face to see, Through toil and care and heartless apathy.

But when they laid my lady with the flowers To sleep, where wake a thousand smiling springs, A solitary father, praying hours Beneath grand arch and grave cathedral towers, Thanked, for my lady's rest, the King of kings. He knew her soul had yearned a weary while To sleep and rest the burden of a smile!

THE PERSON WHO HAD HIS CHARACTER

The person who had his character read by the palmist must now go to the first corner of the chiropodist in order to learn whether the markings on the foot agree with the prognostications of the hand.

According to the adepts, a small instep denotes religious temperament, while if it is high it suggests self-consciousness. If arched, it indicates a love of luxury, while if it is thin in addition it not only demonstrates the desire for appreciation and applause, but the possession of honor and lofty ideals. A thick, heavy instep, which the boot-maker would describe as rather high, is the mark of the individual who is capable of great exertion continued over a long time, the instep, in fact, of the worker.

The heel is another of the great diagnostic points. If it is smooth and round and without any prominent outlines, it declares the individual to belong to that commonplace order which never achieves distinction and who, though pleasant enough in his or her way to live with, is yet devoid of any special talent. If it is small, it shows that the owner is capable of going heart and soul into any work that he undertakes.

Long toes suggest artistic capacity, just as do long fingers of a certain shape, while short toes indicate selfishness. If they are crooked as well as long, they demonstrate the possession of good common sense and no little business capacity, while toes separated by a distinct interval, in spite of the compression in which fashionable boots compel them, are indicative of emotion. If they curve downward, they indicate an amiable turn of mind, and different portions of them denote different characteristics as do the so-called "mountains" and "valleys" on the palm.

In addition to all these characteristics the markings on the sole must be carefully considered, for they may modify certain other peculiarities. It is impossible, however, to lay down any laws of self guidance in these minutiae, but the broad facts will no doubt furnish a sufficient stimulus for further investigation at the hands of the wise women of the world, for they must be indeed wise who can read, as in an open book, character which may be formed by the constrictions of a fashionable boot.

Whatever else may be done, however, it is safe to say that great toes which are pressed out of the straight line, and which are therefore in hideous contrast with the beautiful feet of Trilby, bespeak an egotistical vanity in their possessor and proclaim a belief in the proverb which states that "to be beautiful one must suffer." This, however, was the old fashioned idea, which it is hoped the vogue of Mr. du Maurier's heroine will have done a great deal to counteract. — Philadelphia Times.

His Sacrifice.

"Darling," he said, looking down tenderly into the eyes of his bride, "I have often heard you say that there is no true love without self sacrifice. You have taught me this great truth, and now I am going to prove my love by giving up something that has been very dear to me for years. You know how fond I am of smoking. Well, dearest, I am going to abandon the practice, even though it be like tearing out my—my—" At this point his emotion apparently overcame him, and he looked down at the sweet face, expecting to see there appreciation of his noble resolve, but he saw only a look of blank disappointment.

"What is the matter? Are you not glad that I am following your teaching?" he asked.

"It's not that," she answered, almost sobbing. "Never mind what it is." And she rushed from the room.

The self sacrificing hero smiled. He had learned from his wife's dearest friend that she had set her heart on buying him half a dozen boxes of cigars covered with lovely silver paper wrappers, with pictures in the middle.

And that is what gave birth to his noble resolution. — Pearson's Weekly.

Electric Protection of Safes.

The latest idea for the protection of money and valuables is to have the safe which contains them secured inside a cabinet. Where the safe is kept in a vault the vault serves the purposes of a cabinet. In either case an electric lining is used, consisting of strips of metal mounted in connection with thin metal sheets so arranged that even a pin thrust through the cabinet and penetrating the lining will sound the alarm. The door of the vault cannot be opened, nor can the cabinet be opened, until a time lock has disconnected it from the alarm system. In order that the alarm box may be proof against molestation it is made of steel and placed within a hood lined in the same way as the cabinet. Any attempt at tampering will cause an alarm to be sounded, as in the case of the cabinet. The door is held closed by heavy lag bolts, the partial removal of any of which will give a warning signal. There are several of these lag bolts, and before the door can be opened they have all to be removed, which requires a considerable length of time.

A Pigeon Race.

In France pigeons are regarded as valuable messengers in case of war, and recently the French ministry of war offered a prize for the winner of a pigeon race from Ferigneux to Paris, 280 miles. No less than 2,746 birds were entered in the contest. The winner made the distance in 7 hours 34 minutes, an average of over 34 miles an hour.

The Wrong Jam.

Haskell—What's Bobby crying for? Mrs. Haskell—Oh, the poor boy caught his finger in the pantry door. Haskell—What? He evidently didn't get the jam he was looking for, did he?

WHEN IT COMES TO SQUARE SPORT

"When it comes to square sport among professionals," admitted the veteran who lives by bucking obnoxious, "I reckon you've got to give the first place to baseball. But way back in the days before the league system was perfected I used to see some curious things. I remember one club in central Ohio that was as good a local organization as I ever saw. All the men in the team were strapping six footers, used hickory bats and knocked a live ball so far that all the farmer boys in the vicinity had a supply. Finally a sports manager got hold of them, went wherever there was a game to be had, took a professional battery with him and bet all the money he could place. Having nothing special on hand that season, I concluded to do a little business on my own hook.

"By a little quiet skirmishing in Toledo, Cleveland, Cincinnati and Columbus I got together a nine that were fast enough for any company. I took them to a little country town about 30 miles from the club I've been telling you about, named them after the place, did some sancy blowing through the county newspaper and got a challenge from the very fellows we were after. We went over there in old farm wagons, looking like the rustiest lot of grangers that ever ventured away from home. In practice my boys got tangled up in their own feet, fell over each other and made the opposing manager feel so good that he was betting at every turn. I was right with him as long as I had a dollar, and there was a big roll for one of us when the game was over. Now there was a change. My boys came out of the dressing room in knickerbockers, sweaters and canvas shoes, as slick a looking lot of ringers as you ever saw. It was a pinch, and I was only hot because I had no more money to put up."

"Good thing? I got the double cross. My battery sold out to the other manager. They bent us so bad that the scorers demanded extra pay. My pitcher and catcher got away before I could borrow a gun. I walked ten miles to the nearest station and then took a box car. That wasn't a square game." — Detroit Free Press.

FRIENDS OF HIS.

Some Close Acquaintances of Whom He Spoke In His Dreams.

"John," said Mrs. Eastlake to her husband as she poured out his coffee at the breakfast table, "I think you have never introduced your friend, Mr. High, to me, have you?"

"I have no friend named High," replied Mr. Eastlake as he devoured buttered toast.

"Oh, but you must have, dear," insisted Mrs. Eastlake. "You are familiar enough with him to call him Jack."

"Jack High! Don't know anybody of that name. You never heard me mention his name, did you?"

"Certainly. That is the reason I asked you about him."

"When did I speak of him?"

"I think you must have met him last night," Mrs. Eastlake went on, "though of course if you had met him then you would have remembered it without any trouble. I only know that after you went to bed—you got home about 2 o'clock, John—you fell into a troubled sleep. You muttered a good deal, but I could not distinguish anything very clearly except the name of Mr. High—Jack High, you called him. Once I thought I heard you mention a woman's name—Kitty—but I'm not sure."

Mrs. Eastlake looked narrowly at her husband as she said this, and he looked at her suspiciously and then said:

"Oh, yes, I believe a man named Jack High did drop in to see the sick friend I was sitting up with, but you could scarcely call him a friend of mine on such short acquaintance."

"Of course not. But who was Kitty?"

"There was no one named Kitty. You must have been mistaken. I don't know anybody of that name—absolutely nobody."

Then Mr. Eastlake put his coat on and left the house, after kissing his thoughtful little wife goodby. — Louisville Courier-Journal.

The People Nearest the Pole.

The Etahs, a handful of Eskimos numbering probably 100 persons, are the most northern people of the world. They have their abiding place on the west coast of Greenland, between 76 and 79 degrees north latitude. For many years after Dr. Kane came home with his vivid and absorbing story of these isolated natives they were supposed to have built their stone huts nearer the pole than any other human beings. It is known now, however, thanks to Buss Is, Nares and Greeley, that there are numerous traces of human occupancy as far north as the eighty-second parallel, and so long ago was it that they built their huts and sledges and hunted the bear and walrus in the far north of Grant Land that the Etah natives of today have only the dimmest and most uncertain traditions of them. — Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Danes.

The Danes, or Northmen, first became prominent in European history in 783, when they began to ravage the north coast of France and southern shores of Great Britain. The daring of these hardy seamen was remarkable, for in their small ships they even penetrated the Mediterranean and became terrors to the seaboard population of Italy, Sicily and Greece. The first king of Denmark is said to have been Skjold, 60 B. C.

The rarest and costliest gems, though not always esteemed the most beautiful, are pigeon's blood rubies, fire opals and diamonds that are pure but shed a distinct glow of blue or pink. A very perfect pair of gorgeous size and lustrous skin, valued at a fairly beautiful price, was sold at the recent auction of the London and Manchester jewelry market.

Stop! Stop! The poison of despair stares you in the face. Health is the sunny land of life, disease the gloom. It is asserted that the mysterious border once crossed there can be no returning. In many, many cases it is true, provided an unskillful practitioner has the individual in charge. Not so with Drs. B. S. & Co., the eminent specialists of Muskegon. Under their manipulation and scientific discoveries, and their application, all functional and organic troubles and their consequent evils are banished perfectly and permanently. The victim, the sufferer, regains his health and strength and becomes again a sound being. Their marvelous skill and ability is not the result of chance or "luck," but the legitimate growth of preserving application and unrestrained research. Their cures are vouched for and substantiated by living proofs, by the healthy beings who have been restored through Drs. B. S. & Co.'s skill.

FARMING IN THE SOUTH.

NO DROUGHTS, GENIAL CLIMATE AND AVAILABLE SECTIONS ESPECIALLY ADAPTED TO SETTLEMENT BY NORTHERN FARMERS.

Almost every variety of grains and grasses grown in the North can be successfully grown in the South, but the crops that give best results for the money invested and labor expended are fruits and vegetables. Cotton is no longer king in the South. This wonderful change may possibly have been brought about by the large number of Northern farmers that have located at so many points on the Illinois Central and the roads in the States of Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana, and carried with them the

PRACTICAL IDEAS OF DIVERSIFIED FARMING

as practiced in the North. No country in America can compare with southern Mississippi and northern Louisiana for the cultivation of fruits and vegetables, and the time is not far distant when this locality will supply the early markets of the North and Northwest. All who contemplate a change of location should investigate this favored section, to aid in which, send for a free copy of the MAN IN BRONZE.

Illinois Honors the Memory of Her Distinguished Soldier.

NATION JOINS IN THE TRIBUTE.

Statue Unveiled That Perpetuates In Enduring Metal One of the Most Heroic and Dramatic Scenes of the War for the Union—The Black Eagle of Illinois at Atlanta, Where He Saved the Day When McPherson Fell—Story of That Achievement Eloquent Told.

Chicago, July 23.—Yesterday the center of the west was a little mound in Lake Front park. Past its base for four hours after hour swept rank after rank of men who had been defenders of their country throughout the days which are at once the brightest and darkest in its history—rank after rank of the fighting men of today, and rank after rank of the boys who are to be the soldiers of the future. From 3 o'clock in the afternoon until 7, the broad expanse of Michigan avenue was swept from curb to curb by the marching host. From end to end it was a glittering vision of weapons of war, tossing plumes and standards, and throughout its length a vast concourse of people packed the sidewalks, filled the windows, and scaled the roofs to see as the soldiers marched how Illinois kept faith with the memory of John A. Logan.

Friends and Comrades Were There.

In front of a little hillock upon whose summit stands the inspiring and life-like statue of Logan as he appeared while rallying the broken ranks of the Army of the Tennessee thirty-three years ago yesterday was erected a large stand, and upon it were seated his wife, his children, his grandchildren and brothers. In the absence of President McKinley, who was detained in Washington, Secretary of War Alger represented the government. Old friends and comrades of Logan were there in profusion. Members of his old regiment, members of the Grand Army, and members of the Loyal Legion, all gathered in great numbers to do him honor. To crown all the weather was magnificent. The city was elaborately decorated on the line of march. It was a great day on which to hold a great parade in honor of the greatest volunteer soldier of the west.

Prominent on the Reviewing Stand.

On the reviewing stand, besides the members of General Logan's family, including his widow, were: Governors Tanner, of Illinois; Holcomb, of Nebraska; Drake, of Iowa; Mount, of Indiana; Atkinson, of West Virginia, and Scofield, of Wisconsin; Secretary of War R. A. Alger and Mrs. Alger; ex-Senator D. M. Sabin, of Minnesota; Archbishop John Ireland, of St. Paul; Lord Breadalbane, of England, and Governor Barnes, of Oklahoma. Two brothers of General Logan—Thomas M. Logan, of Murphysboro, Ills., John A. Logan's birthplace, and James V. Logan, of Olney, Ills., occupied places of honor. President McKinley sent a letter of profound regret that he could not be present. At 1 p. m. the ceremonies at the stand began with prayer, and then the presentation speech by Henry W. Blodgett.

Little Jack Logan Pulls the Cord.

Next, amid the rattle of artillery "Little Jack" Logan tugged at the silver cord, the veils fell from the statue and the thousands applauded. Again the artillery salute rent the air as the United States band struck up. Governor Tanner in a short speech accepted the monument on behalf of Illinois, and George R. Peck pronounced the oration, the speaking and other features of the programme being completed about 3 p. m. and the parade and review commenced, nor Holcomb requesting him to send

PARADE OF THE BOYS IN BLUE.

United States Troops, G. A. R. Men, and Others—Twenty Thousand in Line.

The troops fell in line in Twelfth street at the command of the grand marshal, General Brooke, department of the Missouri, and marched north on Michigan avenue past the reviewing stand. Over 20,000 men were in line, headed by a squad of police on foot. The survivors of General Logan's old regiment, the Thirty-first Illinois volunteers, led the van, proudly bearing the old regimental flag, tattered and torn by 200 Confederate bullets. Then came the grizzled veterans of the G. A. R., with bared heads in honor of their first and idolized commander-in-chief. With the veterans marched ex-Confederates 200 strong. The appearance of the veterans of the gray was a touching tribute to the man they met in battle on the bloody field of Atlanta.

Behind the southerners marched with easy swing 2,500 regulars, the largest number seen together in the west since the civil war. Every branch of the service was represented, including eight troops of cavalry. The governors of states with their staffs followed, and then came the Illinois National Guard, 7,000 strong, under command of Governor Tanner as commander-in-chief. The Knight Templars and Knights of Pythias followed to the number of 1,500. The parade was brought up by 1,300 Chicago mail carriers and 3,000 uniformed detachments of various civic societies not bearing arms.

Parade and Chicago, which were anchored just off the monument, were nearly 300 vessels of the merchant marine and private yachts, all gallily decorated for the occasion. Shortly after 8 p. m. Mrs. Logan and her party left the Auditorium Annex for the Coliseum. An immense throng had gathered to witness in the Coliseum gardens the fireworks, which were on a par with the lavish and beautiful display shown at intervals during the World's fair.

An unpleasant incident of the parade was the disagreeable reception accorded Governor Tanner at frequent points along the line of march. In more than a dozen places he was hissed loudly. Cheers were given him, too, and in front of the reviewing stand on Michigan avenue a flattering greeting was given him; but at places—notably at Jackson boulevard and LaSalle street—he was met with a storm of hisses.

STORY THAT IS PERPETUATED.

The Way the Black Eagle of Illinois Brought Victory at Atlanta.

And this is the way he won his renown on that day, and gave the artist the inspiration that has been perpetuated in bronze: The whole army of Sherman was just east of Atlanta. Sherman was at the center. Thomas and Schofield were the right wings—to the north. McPherson, with Logan just below him in command, was at the left—to the south. Decatur, northeast ten miles, was full of Confederates—Wheeler's cavalry and a strong artillery force. Southwest ten miles was Sprague's brigade, marching forward—to the west—over the road which the rest of Sherman's army had so lately taken. Hardee commanded a brigade on the rebel left to the north of Atlanta. There was no strong force opposed to McPherson, but he was not yet ready to move forward.

Just at this time the Confederate rulers removed Johnston from the command of the rebel army and gave the place to Hood. McPherson had known him at West Point and knew he was a fighter. Sherman knew him and gave warning that the Union army must be on its guard. And two days later the warning was verified. Hardee—"Old Tactics"—swept suddenly around from his position in front of Schofield, marched down to the west of Atlanta and suddenly struck at McPherson's command. That was July 22, 1864. McPherson at the moment was up at headquarters, to the east of Atlanta, chatting with Sherman. Sherman had just learned that the force in front of Schofield was withdrawn. His men had felt the country to the west of them for three miles and found nothing but abandoned camps and empty earthworks. For one brief while the dream that Hood had evacuated Atlanta came to him. Then he heard the roar of guns to the south. Hardee had struck at McPherson's corps.

Instantly McPherson was in his saddle. He dashed away to the south with a single orderly. Hardee had passed his farthest flank and was cutting into the Union army. It meant disaster. But there came the chance of war. Sprague's brigade, just arriving, filled by accident the space which protected the Seventh corps, and the rebel advance was checked. McPherson turned his horse and dashed down a wood path across timber in which not a soldier had appeared a minute before. He ran straight into a detail of rebel skirmishers and they commanded him to surrender. General McPherson simply replied with the military salute and turned to ride north, toward Sherman's army. The skirmishers fired a volley and the gallant commander fell dead from his horse.

His orderly galloped swiftly to Sherman with the news, and the grim chief-tain flashed a thought along the line of men who might succeed to that lamented vacancy. There were Blair and Hooker and Howard. There was Logan. And to him fell the temporary command—with the obligation to turn the tide of defeat and win the battle of Atlanta. It was a crisis. The men knew McPherson—loved and trusted as the rebels loved and followed Jackson—had fallen. The bravest men the war had produced wavered and wondered. They needed a leader. There came Hardee like a hurricane. A mile away the legions of Cheatham were fronting into line of battle. Between the rebels and the Union lines lay the body of McPherson, his pockets rifled, his papers gone.

VERY GENIUS OF THE BATTLE.

Logan Gallops Down the Line and Organizes Victory.

In that most trying of moments the soldiers in blue heard a roar to their right; saw the galloping advance of a mighty horseman; felt the stirrings of battle-mad enthusiasm and knew a new leader had come. It was General John A. Logan. His horse was a coal black charger, fit to carry an emperor. In his left hand General Logan grasped the reins and guided his steed in the very teeth of peril. In his right he swung forward and back the colors of the nation they all adored. His black eyes flashed courage to their faltering hearts. His thunderous voice called them to come on and avenge the death of McPherson. His whole presence stamped him the leader of armies, the man for a supreme occasion. How they howled their welcome to his coming! How they nerved themselves to any blow that fell. How they trusted him!

A storm of cannon shot stopped Cheatham and he never made a junction with Hardee till he found him in the night, beaten, baffled and retreating. A charge along the whole of that left wing drove back the enemy, and McPherson's ridged body was recovered. The men who had killed him were trapped in their turn, and every scrap of his papers was recovered. When they had recaptured that ground the right wing of Hardee was behind them. And they whirled about and scooped up the whole division prisoners. Then they faced about to the west again and drove back the whole murderous line of Hardee, and chased Cheatham out of the woods, throwing up entrenchments every time they paused at the end of a rush, and holding their places like walls of solid rock.

And the battle of Atlanta was won. Hardee was crushed. Hood was discredited. In the very moment of surprise, at the very verge of a panic, John A. Logan went down the length of the line, did a fearful deed, preserved from death a thousand times, and swept with the army of the Tennessee to the very gates of Atlanta.

That moment achievement and the quality of the man.

EASY, ALL!

"Easy, all!" rings out the order,
And the muscles cease to strain,
And the swing of oars in rowlocks
Stops its rhythmical refrain,
And the sinking heart beats freely,
And the spent breath comes again.

"Easy, all!" Oh, joyous mandate
To the strugglers on life's flood,
Be it but a passing respite
For the brain and strength and blood,
Though far distant be the guerdon—
Fame or wealth or livelihood!

When the summer sunshine brightens
Grimy street and sullen wall,
From the strips of azure heaven
Seems to come the kindly call:
"Rest awhile, ye weary toilers!
Drop your oars and easy, all!"

THE TONE OF THE BELL

Not Improved by the Use of Gold or Silver
In the Bell Metal.

There is a general belief that the introduction of silver or gold in the casting of a bell assures for it a superior tone, but an expert in founding bells says that such a belief is erroneous. He says that the best tone effect in bell metal is confined within very narrow limits, for any so called bell metal having more than 80 parts copper to 20 parts tin is too soft to produce the best quality of tone, while that having more tin than 28 parts in the 100 is much too brittle. There are bells in Europe whose clear tones were for many years credited to gold and silver that were supposed to have been added to the bell metal. An analysis was made not long ago of the metal in one of these bells, and it failed to show any trace of gold or silver. The old German bell founders used to make their bells of 80 parts copper to 20 parts tin. In the opinion of this expert the strongest and best toned bell is obtained from 79 parts copper and 21 parts tin.

"After the bell is 'drawn,'" says the expert, "two sweeps are made and adjusted to an upright spindle in the center of an iron case or flask, the flask having perforations all over it. Over the surface of the flask is coated, wet, a layer of loam of equal and suitable thickness and baked. Then another layer is coated on and baked, and so on, layer after layer, until the proper shape, etc., are secured. There are two such iron molding cases, one fitting over the other. The under one has the loam coating on its outer side, which has the inner shape of the proposed bell. The upper iron molding case or flask has the loam on its inner surface, forming the outside shape of the bell. This is let down over the under mold and carefully adjusted equally all around, leaving a space inside between the two molds. The under flask is called the core. The upper or outer one is called the case. The space is filled up by the molten bell metal, which, when cooled, is the bell.

"When the bell is taken out of the molds it is polished, and then the hangings, tongue (or clapper), etc., fitted to the bell, and it receives a severe ringing test, partly to ascertain its tone and resonant quality and to observe its mechanical excellence and adjustment. Then, if it appears to be good in all points, it is shipped to the purchaser. The making and shipping of a bell usually require from 10 to 15 days in the smaller sizes. The larger sizes—i. e., from 1,500 pounds and heavier—require more time. A peal of three or more bells requires from 40 to 60 days' time, while a chime of nine or more bells requires from three to six months.

"Any foundry can, of course, readily make and select nine or ten bells in tune for a chime, but tune is one thing, tone is another."—Church Economist.

THE SERVANT QUESTION.

The Advantages Which the "Lady" in the Kitchen Enjoys.

The servant problem is one which is of universal and painful interest. The world over the question is the same—how to adjust the conflicting claims of servant and employer. It is true that a bad mistress or master is able to make a great deal of misery for persons employed by her or him, but the advantage is not wholly on the side of the superior in social position. A servant, especially a domestic servant, is perforce admitted to a great degree of intimacy in the family. She knows its in-comings, its outgoings, hears much of its private conversation and is quite likely to discover its secrets if it has any. If she is of a mischievous or gossiping disposition, she can create endless trouble by telling outside what she knows, enlarging upon what she merely guesses at and perhaps supplying missing links by the exercise of her imagination. What she says is credited because she is in a position to be well informed, and she can falsely with impunity, there being no redress for the victims. The servant therefore has a certain advantage, if she chooses to avail herself of it, while it is by no means always safe for the mistress or master to tell even truths, if they are unpleasant ones, about the employees. A case in point recently occurred

GIRL'S DRESS.

In Paris. A gentleman, having discharged a cook for excellent reasons, was applied to by letter for information with regard to her character. He replied, also by letter, that she was wasteful, impertinent and inclined to drink. The cook brought immediate suit against him, and he had to pay damages. Now, it was imprudent of him to tell the truth about the girl; but, on the other hand, is it right to give a bad servant a good character and so insure her admission to families where she may continue her undesirable proceedings? The question is a complicated one, and persons who can avoid it altogether by dispensing with hired personal service are well off.

The sketch given today shows a girl's costume having a skirt of pearl gray crepon trimmed with narrow dark blue velvet, the upper band forming scallops and choux. The bodice of blue velvet has a puffed plastron of white mousseline de sole gathered under blue velvet bands. The close sleeves of gray crepon are trimmed with bands of blue velvet at the wrists and have ruffled sleeve caps similarly adorned. With this gown is worn a hat of blue straw trimmed with blue satin and cowslips.
